Oreninc.com returns from artificial hibernation with new management team and focus

Vancouver, BC – September 27, 2016 – After seven months of artificial hibernation, Oreninc.com is finally back doing what it has been doing so well over the last five years, providing the latest financing information to the investment community in the junior commodities space.

With its proprietary Oreninc Deal Log (ODL) database, Oreninc provides much needed transparency in an impenetrable jungle of financing information. Investors, analysts and company executives alike turn to the ODL as it presents clear, accurate and concise data in a digestible format.

“Benjamin Cox and his team have done an exemplary job over the last five years by building a database that seeks comparison in our industry, and by providing transparency in a market that desperately needs it,” states Kai Hoffmann, CEO of Soar Financial Canada Corp. “We are honored that Benjamin entrusts us with the Oreninc Deal Log and are excited to be continuing his legacy.”

“It is our goal to develop Oreninc into a buzzing hub for financing information in the North American junior commodity space. Not only do we plan to achieve this by continuing to provide users with free access to our proprietary database, but by adding exclusive value-added content. We are in advanced discussions with a few select groups and are planning to announce our first partnerships in due course. New features will be implemented step by step over the next few months.”

Backlogging of financing deals is currently ongoing. The team is working day and night to close the existing gap in the ODL database that was created when Oreninc stopped operations mid-February.

“The sentiment for financings, especially for companies operating in the precious metals space, has seen great improvement in recent months. We cannot wait to publish our first update of the Oreninc Index since February 17th, providing clear evidence of how well the market is really doing,” comments Hoffmann.

Soar Financial Canada Corp., a Vancouver, British Columbia-based private entity, has recently taken over the Oreninc assets from Oren Inc.

“We would much like to thank Paul Ostrow for making the transition such a smooth process and for his support in getting us up and running,” notes Kai Hoffmann.

“We would also like to thank our inaugural sponsors AuRico Metals Inc. (TSX: AMI) and NuLegacy Gold Corp. (TSX.V: NUG) for their support. Without them Oreninc might still be a sleeping giant.”
